JULIE E. SPIVACK, M.D.

DR. JULIE SPIVACK graduated magna cum laude from Yale University and earned her medical degree from Albert Einstein, where she was elected to AOA, the medical honor society. She completed her residency in medicine and fellowship in gastroenterology at Harvard's Beth Israel Hospital. She pursued additional GI training at New York Hospital followed by a hepatobiliary fellowship at Memorial Sloan Kettering and is board-certified in gastroenterology.

Practicing since 1997, Dr. Spivack was one of the first female GI specialists in Fairfield County and the first to bring expertise in liver disease. She also practices general GI and performs colonoscopies and endoscopies. She prides herself on providing cutting-edge medical care to the local community and has made diagnoses missed by doctors at top medical centers. Most importantly, she listens to her patients. "If I listen well and earn their trust, I can treat their potentially embarrassing problems with great sensitivity. I have been privileged to forge close relationships and have a positive impact on my patients' lives."
